

FAQ

Q: How are questions answered?

A: Once it is decided who goes first, the first person pulls a card from any question deck. Once the card is pulled, the person asked the question should provide an answer. The person asking the question, chooses whether to answer or not answer the question.

Q: Does the person asking the question have to answer it as well?

A: No. The person asking the question does not have to answer. However, the purpose of Conversations is to get to learn about others. If you are not providing answers, you may limit the understanding of the person you are getting to know. >>>

Q: How do you determine who goes first?

A: Once it is decided who goes first, the first person pulls a card from any question deck. Once the card is pulled, the person asked the question should provide an answer. The person asking the question, chooses whether to answer or not answer the question.